NAB's petition 04-160 should not be granted. Why is it that when ever something new and good for consumers comes along, there are lawsuits or administrative actions to try and stop it? I enjoy my XM Radio the way it is. I not only listen to my local traffic and weather, but I also listen to traffic and weather in other market areas before and during travel. I would hate to see satellite radio end up with the same asinine restrictions that have been imposed on satellite TV. The airways are public domain. They should be available to all types of commercial and public programming, including pay programming. What's next, is the FCC going to tell me what I can say when using my cell phone, or where I can call and where I cannot.

Enough is enough, stop pandering to the special interest and let this new medium evolve and grow.
